

NONCREDITABLE FOODS

in the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) School Nutrition Programs

Noncreditable foods are foods and beverages that cannot credit toward the USDA meal patterns for the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) and School Breakfast Program (SBP). Schools and institutions may serve noncreditable foods in addition to the meal components to add variety, help improve acceptability in the meal and satisfy appetites. Some examples include maple syrup on pancakes, salad dressing on tossed greens and condiments such as ketchup or mustard on sandwiches and other entrees.

The Connecticut State Department of Education (CSDE) encourages schools to limit noncreditable foods in school menus. These foods often contain little nutritional value and are high in fat, sugars and sodium. Menu planners should read labels, be aware of the ingredients in foods and limit the frequency and amount of less nutritious choices.

All noncreditable foods offered as part of reimbursable meals must count toward the weekly dietary specifications (nutrition standards) for school meals. They must contain zero trans fat and their inclusion cannot cause the menu to exceed the average weekly limits for calories, saturated fat and sodium. For more information, see the CSDE's Meal Patterns Web page.

The chart below lists some examples of noncreditable foods. This list does not include all possible noncreditable foods. For more information, see the CSDE's Menu Planning Guide for School Meals and Crediting Foods Web page.
